

Tucson Lifestyle HOME & GARDEN

HOME OF THE YEAR AWARDS

PLUS: Barrio Garden | Outdoor Kitchens

Home of the Year
Honorable Mention
18th Street Bungalows

Rob Paulus Architects

Photography by David Olsen

Located in the historic Armory Park Neighborhood, the 18th Street Bungalows pull from the past in context, detail and proportion on the exterior, but offer a modern, double-height loft space on the interior. The single lot was split into four separate properties to establish a concept that embraces the repeating unit approach found in the historic district.

Reinterpretation is a constant with the scheme: the typical ventilated upper attic space of the surrounding historic homes is re-defined as living spaces with glazing and shade louvers. This allows a second floor with shaded windows that match the height of the adjacent historic properties.

TOP The 18th Street Bungalows.

ABOVE The bedroom features unique angling of the ceiling and plenty of light through the louvered windows, which cast beautiful shadows that shift throughout the day.

The kitchen is tucked beneath the loft space and behind the open staircase.